ARTILLERY CO. RECEIVES PRELIMINARY ORDERS

While no positive orders have been received here in regards to the movement of the 16th Company, Coast Artillery stationed at Fort Constitution, orders were received on Thursday which gives the officers and members of the company some encouragement. The order was for the company to discontinue artillery drill and confine the work wholly to infantry drill, and this was started immediately.

The officers at the fort are very anxious that they should have a share in the work being done in Mexico and for a time feared that being a mining company they might not get orders, but with the order to work up the infantry drills, everybody took hold with a good will to get in readiness. The command could get ready to take train or boat in a remarkably short time if the orders should come.

THE STATE TROOPS EXPECT A CALL SOON

The New Hampshire militiamen expect to receive the call to go to the front within the next forty-eight hours.

Yesterday afternoon inquiries began to circulate out from the various headquarters in New England, requesting information from railroad officials regarding the possibility of quick-service trains, the number of cars that could be gotten ready on short notice.

These inquiries are understood to have been made by the quartermaster's department of the state troops. Everything is understood to be in readiness now for an immediate removal of the troops. Cars are prepared in this city and standing where they can readily be rushed to the entraining site, and the same is true of Portland, Me., Portsmouth, Boston and other points where bodies of troops are maintained.

The larger number of cars are being collected at Boston, from which point they are to be sent out to the various centers. It will be necessary to get out a lot of the older type of cars, brush them up and make them ready for travelling.

No official word has been issued regarding the maneuvers, but it is understood that the war department has been in communication with the state headquarters and that instructions were issued to "get everything ready." The situation now is tactically this: The adjutant general is primed with all information regarding train movements in this state. He knows just what the railroad can do and how quickly the trains can be made up. The most absolute secrecy surrounds this part of the program, but considerable significance is attached to his statement last night, to the effect that "the state troops are all ready to leave on a moment's notice."

While none of the officers will commit themselves, every one is emphatic in his belief that the militia will be called out any moment now. It only requires the twelve blows twice on the whistle to do it, and they expect it any time now. It was stated a few days ago that Thursday would be the critical point. Thursday has come and finds the tension so great that matters are expected to come to a head any minute.

"It means," said one man, "that the state troops are going to be called out right away. We haven't got a standing army large enough to cope with the troubles down in Mexico."

This air is full of suppressed excitement just as it was before the leaving of the troops for Chickamauga. Especially noticeable is the fine spirit that prevails.

GUARDING AGAINST PLAGUE

How Uncle Sam's Health Service Fights the World's Pests

Consul Norton at Bombay, India, might discover the existence of plague at that port. He would immediately cable the health office at Washington. Washington would cable the health service representative in Calcutta, the surgeon nearest Bombay and that official would immediately take charge of the situation with relation to the departure of ships that were to make American ports. Washington would at the same time cable Manila to guard against plague on all ships arriving from Bombay. The word would be passed throughout the archipelago to Samoa, Honolulu, Guam. The Mediterranean outposts would become watchful of ships from the East. San Francisco would take precautions. New Orleans and New York would be put on their guard. Other progressive nations would pass the word and become equally vigilant. The one flash from Bombay would have tightened the health net of the world.

Plague is borne by fleas that are borne by rats. The flea bites the plague victim, then bites the rat and the rat gets the plague. All the other fleas that bite the rat get the plague and give it to the other rats and thus it spreads from them to human beings. The problem in keeping the plague from spreading is to keep the rats from traveling.

There being plague in Bombay the consular and health officers of the nations see to it that no vessels tie up to a wharf in such a way that a rat may get aboard. These officers allow no freight to go aboard that might carry rats unless it is known to have come direct from a non-infested district. The same regulations are applied to passengers and crews. The ship's papers officially signed, state the facts with relation to all these things. The health authorities want to make commerce possible despite the existence of contagious diseases. So do they prove themselves a boon to business.

The vessel in the above case departs for the Philippines. From headquarters is issued a proclamation that all vessels from Bombay must report at Manila. If this vessel arrives at any other port it is not allowed to land, but must go to Manila for rigid inspection. It is there given a most thorough overhauling. No fleas are put out over which a rat might get ashore. A busy little tig may go alongside and its funnel gasses may be caught with a hand and run into the hold of the ship and all life there exterminated, or the ship may be otherwise fumigated.—American Review of Reviews.

The man beast by dogs in pack
No stone or stick needs to defend him,
If he should turn to beat them back,
The brutes might spring upon and rend him;
But let him walk straight on,
The curs drop back—the snarling dogs—
—is gone.

So with our President whose heels
Are dogged by packs of politicians,
The puppets in all dirty deals
And all unholy coalitions.
He keeps his even way,
Scorning the jackals of the power
that prey.

Against the broad back of Character
The fury of the pack is futile;
Vain is the bark of every cur,
The menace of its fangs futile.
Character knows not fear,
Nor minds an empty yapping in the rear.

This force, which all assaults resist—
We cannot chart it or define it;
We only know that it exists
And that the men instantly divine it,
For it is mightier than the sword or pen.

WAR TAX TO BE LEVIED FOR REVENUE

Washington, April 23.—Administration leaders today laid plans for raising war revenue in case the army has to go into Mexico. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo discussed plans for raising revenue with Commissioner of Internal Revenue Osborne, and signified his intention of taking it up later with Chairman Underwood of the House ways and means committee, and Senator Simmons, chairman of the Senate committee of the Senate.

The first measure planned would impose a stamp tax on checks and legal documents similar to that imposed during the Spanish war; another would tax sweet wines and fortified brandies and probably beer. According to the estimate, this measure will net the Treasury about $116,000,000 a year and, if the situation demanded, the obligation to levy special war revenue-producing stamps to legal documents, bank checks, stock certificates, bonds and the like, as well as purchasing proprietary articles and patent medicines, claims, cigarettes, snuff, and other forms of tobacco that have paid taxes in addition to those regularly imposed by internal revenue and tariff acts.

Details of the Tax
The Spanish American war tax extended over a total period of four years and seventeen days and it raised during that time $380,371,794.07. It was in complete operation for three fiscal years, beginning July 1, 1898. President McKinley signed it on June 13, 1898, and during the seventeen days of the existing fiscal year the war tax brought in $3,910,442.51. Then came the fiscal year of 1899, during which it yielded $102,859,018.36. In 1900, the amount of revenue received from it was $105,374,227.95, while in 1901 the Government collected $107,415,213.45.

Reducing the Tax

On March 2, 1901, a substitute bill was enacted reducing the taxes on many articles and removing those on others because it was then apparent that not much more special revenue would be required. This second act was in effect only during the fiscal year of 1902, during which time it yielded $61,681,262.80.

Florence, and loved to drive in that city in a little victoria lined with oyster-gray satin, drawn by chestnut ponies, with bells and bunches of pheasants' feathers strung in their harness. Later on she drove a pair of white ponies and the carriage was lined with white satin.

Matching in colors was one of the novelist's greatest sins. Her shoes were satin to match her gown, and she wore the same footgear in garden or meadow. She usually made her mother dress in black by way of contrast and liked to receive guests dressed in white satin, seated in a red satin arm chair, her feet stretched out to show their beautiful proportions.

There appears to have been no limit to "Ouida's" extravagances in regard to dress. She not only had her gown made by Worth, the great Paris dress-maker of the period, but it is said by those who knew her that she always dressed to fit the heroine she was depicting at the time—white muslin if a peasant girl, white satin for a great lady.

She appears to have treated women except her few intimate friends with scant courtesy, and could be very rude on occasions. She rarely dined out on account of her delicate health, and when she did her hosts found her very difficult to deal with. She thought nothing of walking the whole evening if she met someone whom she did not desire to meet, while, if she felt bored she would insist on going upstairs to the drawing room before dinner was ended. There she would lie on a sofa, ring for the servant, and ask if her carriage had come, and if it had not she remained silent on the sofa until its arrival.—Tit-Bits.

There is one natural question in regard to saving the answer to which comes so logically through all the table calculations that it is as easy or satisfactory checking up as tax, which brought the two parts of the great jigsaw together. That question is: "If a man die, shall he live again?" The answer that checks out and satisfies all the experienced conditions is, "All the days of my appointed time will I walk till my change comes, thou shalt call and I will answer thee; thou will have a desire to do the work of thine hands."

The menu consisted of:

At the conclusion of the supper remarks were made by the members of the winning team and others and the members agreed that it was the best ending of any contest they have ever held.

PATERNALISM AT THE FORD WORKS.

The country was astounded a few months ago by the remarkable plan of profit sharing, so called, adopted by the Ford Automobile company of Detroit, whereby the minimum of wages to be paid the men in the works was raised to $5 a day, no matter if the job was nothing but floor sweeping. It was such a step as had never been taken before in this or any other country, and one which it was impossible for the public to completely understand. Whether it was a good thing or a bad thing was the subject of widespread discussion. That it was not business was generally agreed.

It develops now that there is a strong string of paternalism attached to this move on the part of the company, and the men are not to have the money to do with entirely as they please. With the advanced wages comes a demand for a proper standard of living, the standard to be decided by the company and not by the men. Men with families are no longer permitted to take boarders or roomers, and single men must provide themselves with quarters and live in a manner to meet the approbation of their employers.

To a certain extent this may be a good thing. Many of the employees are foreigners and they are to be taught American ways as rapidly as possible. Among other things a school has been established in which they will be taught English, and no one can deny that this is an excellent thing.

In order to see that the rules the company has established in the interest of what it considers decent living under the conditions which the present wage scale makes possible a large number of investigators have been appointed to look into the ways of living that prevail among the employees, and see that they are corrected when not up to the standard set by the company.

The company claims that its desire is to make good citizens of all its employees, and this in itself is commendable, but the question is whether good citizens can be turned out mechanically, as are automobiles. Personal liberty is essential to good citizenship, and when the living of men and families is governed by outsiders as completely as if they were horses and cattle it is to be feared they may lose some of the stamina and independence which are inseparable from the best citizenship. But all this is the Ford company's concern, and it only remains for the public to see how it works out.

The claim is made that moving pictures have a bad effect on the eyes. People familiar with this popular form of public entertainment do not need to be told that when the pictures are not perfectly presented they are enough to ruin the eyes, to say nothing of their effect on the temper.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon says Congress should stand by the president in his decision regarding Mexico, whether that decision is wise or not. Which reminds one of the famous toast: "My country, may she always be right, but, right or wrong, my country."

Now is a good time to compete for the prizes provided by Mr. Carnegie for the best essays on peace. Any one who could turn out a good essay on that subject now would be worthy of a substantial prize.

The most discouraging news received since the war with Mexico began was the official statement from the White House from Secretary Tumulty that Secretary Bryan had not resigned from the cabinet.

When Huerta learns that this country is preparing to rush the construction of airships for war purposes he will probably salute the flag, in case that formality has not already been attended to.

A Boston paper has engaged a novelist as its Mexican correspondent. The service offers a wide field for the imagination, as some of the other correspondents have apparently discovered.

The name of the Yale Divinity School has been changed to the Yale School of Religion. This is about as important as the changing of the name "presiding elder" to "district superintendent."

Under the circumstances the officers of the navy are edublly thankful that the wine mess abolition has not yet gone into effect.

The voting machines makes trouble in some places, and the political machine makes trouble in all.

Perhaps the matter might be compromised by permitting Mr. Bryan to order a Chautauqua salute.

We have got a job on our hands in Mexico and we must go to it.

Salute the flag!

"THE GOOD OLD TIMES"

Interesting Experiences of a Portsmouth Veteran

Some of the boys of a half century ago will remember their enrollment in the old Home Guard, of which Henry F. Wendell was the captain of which. It used to be facetiously remarked that the company was enlisted for home duty while the Southern rebellion was on, "not to leave Portsmouth except in case of invasion!" We had a full company and used to drill almost every evening, sometimes in Jefferson Hall, sometimes in the hall at the corner of Market and Hanover streets, in the vestibule of the post office, and sometimes on the street with all the manoeuvres of field tactics. Among the privates was the venerable, much honored and esteemed fellow citizen, Jacob Wendell, then well nigh four score, but as really and earnestly interested in the drill as were those of only a score of years. There are others also might be mentioned, but that was long ago and they are now mostly deceased in everlasting peace "where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

But just here we will speak of one other, who even now is enjoying the "olden com' day," of him whose past labors are having the just reward of a life well spent, and is now a resident of Boston. He was then prominent among the younger limits of the law. After awhile he was commissioned as Paymaster in the army and left Portsmouth for the front in the autumn of 1862, with the title of Colonel Albert H. Hoyt. An interesting incident in his army experiences is told by a comrade, which will interest others than those who personally knew him. It is about "A Perilous Night in the Department of the Gulf" where the two officers were then stationed. The writer was Nathan T. Gardner, brevet maj. and com. sub. U. S. Vol. He tells the story thus:

Colonel Albert H. Hoyt was one of the most popular paymasters in the army. Hundreds of soldiers will testify to his kindness in having mistakes corrected on muster rolls, made through carelessness, and many times through the detailing of soldiers away from their regiments, which prevented their being paid. Many young officers who went months without their pay by the non-receipt of their commission were put right by the colonel.

All this extra labor made many trips for the colonel to the headquarters of the army where he was always a welcome visitor. For many months the Twelfth Connecticut regiment had been on the march from place to place. It had received no pay for a long time. The families of the men at home were suffering for want of their pay. The master rolls of the regiment had been in the hands of a number of different paymasters to be paid, none of whom could seem to get to it. Colonel Hoyt, learning of the distress of the families of the brave soldiers, went to the chief paymaster of the department and requested that the regiment be assigned to him for payment, which was done. Learning one evening that the regiment was to stop over night at Brashears City, Colonel Hoyt went at once to the chief quartermaster of the department and applied for transportation over the New Orleans and Opelousas railroad. A special train was soon in readiness, and we went speedily through swamps on our way to Brashears City, a distance from the Crescent City of eighty miles. We had safely passed over fifty-two miles of the road when we came to a sudden halt at Lafourche. Here we got out and found that the bridge over the bayou had been burned by the rebels but a short time before, who had beat a hasty retreat. There was a telegraph office here, and we sent a message to the commandant of the post at Brashears City to send a train for us. But as no reply could be got, it was supposed that the wire had been cut by the rebels. The Twelfth Connecticut regiment was to move the next afternoon up the bayou and Colonel Hoyt, that indefatigable officer and soldier's true friend, was bound and determined that the boys should be paid before they left. A railroad was soon improvised, a hand-car with men to run it, and ourselves put aboard. We were soon landed safely on the other bank of the stream. The hand-car which was a heavy one had to be carried up a steep and high bank before the track was reached; this required a half hour's hard labor of the whole force to do, the colonel being the hardest worker of the small party. The car was put on the rails, the colonel's stack walnut chest, containing $5,000 loaded, and the order, "All aboard!" quickly obeyed, and we were soon passing over the rails at good speed. We had passed about one-half the distance when the writer, seeing a light (it was a dark night and there were lights shining from negro shanties along the sides of the track) gradually approaching the track, sang out "Train coming, jump for your lives!" The light proved to be on a flat car

CURRENT OPINION

Home Cooking to Blame For Many Diseases.

Stop cooking for John! The home of today is a permanent check upon the growth of humanity. Every other business has developed faster than the one we do at home. We hear so much about home cooking! The racial idea about having private cooks prevails among men. But there are more diseases which come from bad cooking at home than from any other cause. The tender mass of sentiment about what we call home cooking is the worst kind of tommyrot. I have seen on the tables in many homes bread which would be a disgrace to the worst bakers.

The growing trade at the delicatessen stores is proof that the movement is already well started to free woman from her slavery. One big kitchen can do the work of fifty small kitchens; one cook can prepare food for thirty persons; three cooks for many hundreds.—Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Author-Sociologist.

which was being backed down to us at high speed. Our telegram had been received and the train sent for us. Chaplain Bradford of the Twelfth Connecticut regiment was aboard and armed with a lantern which was very useful in finding what had become of us and our money and hand-car. The lantern passed over our hand-car directly we vacated it. One of the men who was working the crane to our car was hit by it (the crane) and had two ribs broken. After gathering our wounded and party, we looked for the cash box and found it was stove in several pieces and the $75,000 strewn upon the track. We gathered up the money, Colonel Hoyt, hopping around on one leg as lively as a cricket, helping. Chaplain Bradford helped us aboard his train, and we soon found ourselves at the headquarters of the regiment where we were very kindly cared for. The men were all paid the next morning, it taking over $60,000. After paying the regiment, the colonel, in counting over his cash account, found he was short just fifty cents. Considering the condition his money was in the night before, he thought himself very lucky. Chaplain Bradford started the next night for the north, taking a greater part of the money, which he delivered to the soldiers' families. This is but one of the many incidents that Colonel Albert H. Hoyt took part in during his arduous services in the late War of the Rebellion. Many of your readers will remember his as—

"Statesman, yet friend of truth; of soul sincere
In action faithful, and in honor clear;
Who broke no promise, served no private end,
What gained a title, and who lost no friend."

This story will find some interested readers among those now living who knew Col. Hoyt in former days.

words by Secretary Bryan yesterday left Washington at 12 o'clock last night for Toronto, Canada, accompanied by Chief Flynn, of the U. S. Secret Service.

Washington, April 23.—The American forces now in Vera Cruz will move on to Mexico City and this as soon as possible. Such was the information given out here this evening. Rear Admiral Fletcher who has command of the landing forces in Vera Cruz has already started in that direction for Thursday. Major Butler with his command of marines, had worked out through the city and had found that the railroad for some distance out of the city was in good condition. It is the purpose to have the marines take possession and guard the bridges about eighteen miles out of Vera Cruz which are considered the key to Mexico City.

Whether the movement toward Mexico City will be started at once or a delay made until additional forces are on hand, was not stated.

Carranza Backing Down

Washington, April 23.—The administration was very much pleased this evening with information received from Northern Mexico to the effect that Carranza and Villa, the Constitutional leaders, have disclaimed any idea of fighting with the United States, and they maintain that his letter was not intended in the form of an ultimatum to the United States to take their soldiers out of Vera Cruz. The fact, however, that Villa with his forces are moving north to the border at Juarez leads the authorities to believe that they intend to oppose the United States.

Huerta Has Not Declared War

Vera Cruz, April 23.—Huerta up to this evening has not declared war on the United States which was expected to follow his giving Charge O'Shaughnessy his passport on Wednesday. All day Thursday the news that the declaration had been made was expected here and while news came through from Mexico City very slowly, it was not among any of the dispatches.

El Paso, April 23.—The disquieting news that three troop trains with rebels were bound north to Juarez has led to great military activities here. Additional regular troops were ordered here and in the state militia are under arms.

In lower California the state troops are being mobilized along the border and every precaution being taken to prevent a surprise attack from the Mexicans.

Washington, April 23.—Senor Don Angel Algarra, Charge d'Affaires of the Mexican Embassy, after conferring with Secretary of State Bryan, at noon, said that he had made formal demand for his passports and expected to receive them late today. He said he would leave Washington tonight and probably would go to Europe.

Senor Algarra said that no foreign representative here had yet been designated to handle Mexican affairs, but that the situation probably would be turned over to the French Embassy.

Secretary of State Bryan, just before going into conference with the President, said that Charge Algarra's passports were being prepared in the State Department and would be delivered to him late today.

Carranza Must Not Interfere.

Washington, April 23.—President Wilson issued the following comment on the Carranza statement:

"I wish to reiterate with the greatest earnestness, the desire and intention of this Government to respect in every possible way the sovereignty and independence of the people of Mexico."

The feeling and intention of the Government in this matter are not based upon politics. They go much

RECEPTION TO PASTOR

Members of Advent Church Give Royal Welcome to Rev. Irving S. Barnes.

The home of Rev. and Mrs. L. S. Barnes was a pretty scene on Thursday evening when a parish reception to the pastor and his family was held from 8 to 11 o'clock. There were 55 present to make the reception a success and the time went all in fun.

Rev. L. S. Barnes and Mrs. Barnes were assisted by their daughters, the Misses Ruth, Bessie and Marion, and also by the elders and wives: Mr. and Mrs. Ira Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Proctor.

After the reception a delightful program was presented which was as follows:

Instrumental selections: Howard Proctor, violin; Frederick Proctor, Jr., flute and Miss Ethel Proctor, piano.

Reading: Mrs. William Rand.

Reading: Mrs. Charles Ridge.

Vocal trio: the Misses Barnes.

Piano duet: Mrs. Frank Marshall and Miss Laura Marshall.

Vocal solo: Mrs. Barnes.

Piano duet: Misses Ira and Marion Amazeen.

Reading: Mrs. Martha Long.

Piano solo: Miss Ethel Proctor.

Reading: Mrs. William Rand.

Instrumental selection: Proctor's orchestra.

Reading: Mrs. Ruth Barnes.

Closing song, accompanied by orchestra, sung by all present, "In the Sweet Bye and Bye."

At the conclusion of the program, refreshments of tea, cake and fancy crackers were served. The committee of arrangements consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Amazeen, Mrs. Horace Frye and Miss Ira Amazeen.

A wealth of beautiful flowers, which adorned the house was the mute illustration of the respect which the pastor and his beautiful family are held by the parishioners.

Rev. Barnes, who held this pastorate for three years, and accepted a call to Bridgeport, Conn., was only to pleased to return here to the pastorate which he had enjoyed so much.

The wife and charming young daughters, Misses Ruth, aged 18, both aged 16, and Marion, aged 14, have endeared themselves in the hearts of all the parish.

At the next meeting, May 14th, the fourth degree will be conferred. Rye Grange will be the guests of Strawberry Bank Grange and furnish the program. A banquet will be served.

Now people realize the good the Grange, in a quiet way, is doing, and it is not alone of benefit to members of the order but to all the people. It is a local, state and national organization. The Parade Post owes its being to the strenuous efforts of the Grange both in and out of the legislature. The pure food laws and countless other things of great benefit to the welfare of our people and nation were made possible with the help of the Grange.

At the close of the session of the National Grange held at Spokane, Washington, in 1912 the Treasurer reported the total resources of the organization as follows:

Balance with the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., $12,971.36.

Deposits in Savings Banks, $11,150.62.

Railway and other bonds, $35,760.62.

Loans on real estate, $17,527.63.

Unexpended Grange extension fund, $655.72.

Unexpended deputy fee fund, $110.

NEW LIFE

After one suffers for months from acid dyspepsia, sour stomach, and then finds the remedy is in getting the right kind of food it is something to speak about.

A New York lady and her young son had such an experience and she wants others to know how to get relief. She writes:

"For about fifteen months my little boy and myself had suffered with sour stomach. We were unable to retain much of anything we ate.

"After suffering in this way for so long I decided to consult a specialist in stomach diseases. Instead of prescribing drugs he put us both on Grape-Nuts and we began to improve immediately.

"It was the key of a new life. I found we had been eating too much heavy food which we could not digest.

In a few weeks after commencing Grape-Nuts I was able to do my house work. I wake in the morning with a clear head and feel rested and have no sour stomach. My boy sleeps well and wakes with a laugh.

"We have regained our lost weight and continue to eat Grape-Nuts for both the morning and evening meals.

We are well and happy and owe it to

Grape-Nuts."

Sunkist Oranges

Now Heaviest with Juice

Try Sunkist Lemons, Too

Ask for Sunkist Lemons, too. For cooking purposes or for lemonade there are no other lemons like them—highly flavored, juicy, practically seedless.

These are the best looking and the best lemons—the kind that look most appetizing, sliced or quartered, to serve with fish and meats.

Try Sunkist Lemon juice in place of vinegar in making salad dressing or in any other dish.

These lemons are grown, picked and shipped with the same care used in the production and handling of Sunkist Oranges. Your grocer has them or can get them at once.

This is the season when California Oranges are heaviest with juice, sweetest and most beneficial.

Over ten million daily are being shipped from California and these oranges are now being offered by all dealers.

Every Sunkist Orange is globe-picked and tissue-wrapped—shipped on picking day, therefore always fresh. And prices were never so low as now.

Sunkist Oranges are both good and good for you. Eat them at every meal, between meals and at bedtime. Try this for Spring Fever. Give the children this juice—this drink of natural purity.

Beautiful Rogers Silverware

Save the wrappers from Sunkist Oranges, 12 wrappers from either, with 25 cents extra, to buy one of these three pieces of beautiful Rogers silver: 30 wrappers and 35 cents entitle you to a full three, 30 other beautiful pieces. Send the coupon.

SHIPS LEAVE BOSTON ON RUSH ORDERS

Boston, April 23.—Not many hours ago the first to sail and she pulled out into the stream shortly after one, getting a great send-off from the men of the other ships, workmen at the yard and visitors who gathered on the piers. Some of the sailors pulled off their caps and ties and threw them to their friends on shore, who grabbed them eagerly for souvenirs and remembrances. The ship's band, stationed on deck, played patriotic and popular airs and there were many groups of parents, brothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts, who improved to last opportunity to say good-bye to the officers and men. Two seamen appeared in an intoxicated condition at the upper end of the pier as the gangplank was about to be hauled in and two big sergeants ran up and hustled them aboard in quick time.

As the Nebraska moved out and proceeded down the harbor gathering headway as she moved along, the crowds on the ferryboats gathered on the nearer side to get a view of the first big fighting ship to leave Boston for Mexico since hostilities were opened, whistles were sounded until the harbor echoed with their noise and flags were dipped in salute. Crowds gathered on the wharves along Atlantic Avenue in Charlestown and East Boston to wave good-bye.

A little after three the Virginia and Georgia steamed out to sea and they will be joined down the coast by the Nebraska, which will stop at New York to take on a few supplies and possibly a small amount of coal and then will put on extra steam to catch up.

Commander John F. Carter arrived from the Brooklyn navy yard and immediately went aboard the gunboat.

Castine and took command. From the same yard there came forty-two big jackets, who were marched aboard the Leopold immediately after their arrival on special cars from the South Station. The 115 sailors who arrived from the Naval Training Station at Newport, R. I., were distributed thus forty each to the Virginia and Georgia and thirty-five to the Nebraska.

The supply ship Leopold arrived from the Pensacola navy yard and immediately put ashore a large and powerful high-speed launch, which found men waiting to hoist it aboard the Nebraska. The Leopold is painted white, so makes a rather striking contrast to the deep gray of the other ships. She will load supplies here and then will proceed with all speed down the coast. She may stop at New York before proceeding to Mexico.

For the present the battleship Rhode Island will serve as receiving ship in place of the North Carolina and she will be received the ever-increasing number of navy recruits being enlisted here. It is believed, however, that the Rhode Island soon will be ordered to make ready for service, as her repairs could, on a pinch, be completed without more than a few days delay. She is a sister ship of the New Jersey, now under the command of Admiral Badger at Vera Cruz and, like the New Jersey, is of the third division of the fleet.

The North Carolina is a large and powerful armored cruiser, although she has been outclassed in size, speed, armor and armament by some of the great battle cruisers of England, France, Germany, and even Japan, during the seven years since she was put in commission. At the time of her launching she was among the best and largest armored cruisers anywhere, but America has preferred to devote her attention to battleships of the heaviest fighting order rather than try to compete on this class of ships, so has built none. In recent years, nevertheless, the cruiser now ordered rushed into service is one that would give a good account of herself in a battle, and for patrol duty is as much faster than the majority of the battleships that she could distance them.

The cruiser is 14,500 tons displacement or nearly one-half larger than the famous battleship Oregon, on her trial the North Carolina made 22.5 knots an hour. She is heavily armored, and carries the following batteries: Four ten-inch forty-caliber breech-loading rifles, sixteen six-inch fifty-caliber breech-loading rifles, twenty-two three-inch fifty-caliber rapid-fire guns, four six-pounder guns, and 21-inch submerged torpedo tubes. Her complement is 41 officers and 900 marines and bluejackets.

CARING FOR THE COSTUMES

There are difficulties associated with the care of a big musical company which are only surmounted by watching every detail and keeping an eye on the production from every angle. For instance in The Red Rose, which John D. Fisher will send here soon is found one problem that requires the greatest vigilance. The costumes are naturally built on heavy lines and they are calculated to stand the wear and tear of packing and repacking and moving about as are ordinary gowns. A man is employed who travels ahead of this big company and sees that everything back of the stage is made slick and span for the approach. The house is thoroughly overhauled and then the dressing rooms are covered with new sheetings of cheesecloth so that not a dainty gown can possibly come in contact with a thing that will soil it.

Hangers are everywhere provided with tissue covers and strips of cotton are laid from the dressing rooms to the entrances upon the stage. This is why the piece has the appearance of freshness and charm all the time and the stage pictures are so pretty and bright to look upon. A wardrobe mistress and three assistants are on the job day and night and watch each costume after it is put away after the performance. If there is the slightest suggestion of a rip it goes to the workshop and is finished up then and there before the damage can get beyond repair. If it is too great the gown is immediately replaced. These are rather costly details, but they require eternal vigilance and that is the price of success in any calling. At the Portsmouth Theatre, Wednesday evening, April 29.

BRIEF SOFTENED BY PATRIOTISM

Mother of R. E. Percy of Concord Prostrated by Son's Death.

Concord, N. H., April 23.—"My son died a patriot." In this thought which she expressed tonight in words, does Mrs. Miles E. Percy seek to lighten the load of grief which has prostrated her since this morning when she last learned that her son, Rufus E. Percy had died of mortal wounds received at Vera Cruz.

Rufus E. Percy, U. S. M. C., was born in Highgate Centre, Vt., on June 9, 1891. He completed his education in the high school of that town and came to Concord with his mother and brother G. Cleveland Percy, three years ago. In January 1911, he enlisted in the marine corps, and since that time has been stationed on several ships in Cuban waters, Panama and Central and South America.

The last letter which the mother received from her son came on Monday April 20. Inside of the envelope was a postal card on which was printed in Spanish: "I love you much." The letter was sent from Tampico and dated the 14th.

Adj. General Tuthill has been requested by the family to telegraph the war department asking that the body be sent to the Percy home in this city immediately, and it is believed that Secretary Daniels will comply with the request.

SPRING FEVER

In the Spring a young man's fancy, Yea, oftens an old man's too, Turns away from pavements proxy To the meadows flecked with blue; Nor, perhaps, to first love's dining From the bubbling bobolink, Or to breathe the scent of flowers Leaning o'er the brooklet's brink.

When the days grow balmy, blissful, With the mysteries of spring, And among the apple blossoms The robins sweetly sing, Something calls us to the byways. Beckons each of us to come From the warehouse and the office To the field where glad bees hum.

It is not the love of Nature That nestles each human breast, Not the singing of the songsters, That we fare abroad in quest, But the universal impulse, In the Spring it has its birth, Is to get a hoe and shovel And to delve and dig the earth. —Charles H. Chasley in Truth.

ARMY OFFICERS RECALLED

There will be several illustrated lectures covering such topics as modern school buildings and the practical arts work which is spreading so rapidly in our schools.

The new medical act which has been largely adopted at the spring meetings will be explained and methods of administering the same discussed.

School boards attending this meeting are in line of duty and their required and necessary expenses are a proper charge.

WOOD AWAITING ORDERS

No Call as Yet Issued for Militia—Action Likely to Await the Vote or Congress.

Washington, April 23.—General Wood still is awaiting orders at the War Department. No call has yet been issued for the militia and it is said that nothing could be done in that direction until Congress had acted by authorizing the movement and by providing the large amount of money necessary for the concentration of the militia forces at the various camps which already have been selected in the respective states.

All the second division is now back in camp at Galveston and at Texas City waiting orders to move. Long practice marches and drills which would interfere with prompt marching if the men aboard transports have been abandoned. There has been considerable discussion of what use will be made of the big brown tent city at Texas City, where the larger portion of the second division has been encamped for more than a year if the regulars "now" occupying it go to the front. Army men here say the camp, reclaimed ground from a marsh, is the most sanitary for its size in the world.

Within the past year tentative plans have been laid before the War College in Washington for using this camp for drilling large bodies of men. The plans entreated gilling the Texas City and Galveston camp sites with national guardsmen or volunteers after the regulars had left for the front. The drilling these recruits for about four months before sending them forward. Another feature of the same plan was to send part of the regulars now on border patrol duty, available for it, to the war zone, and retaining

AMERICAN GUNNERS WERE VERY ACCURATE

Galveston, Tex., April 23.—Commenting on the accuracy of shell fire by American warships at Vera Cruz, army officers here said today that for several weeks the navy gunners have had the city of Vera Cruz and vicinity shelled, with all ranges worked out precisely.

"In case we have to fire on Vera Cruz," navy men told their army friends, "we can just look on the chart range of whatever place we want to hit, set the gun for the range and fire."

All the 2d division is now back in camp here, and at Texas City, waiting orders to move. Long practice marches and drills which would interfere with prompt marching of the men aboard transports have been abandoned.

There has been considerable discussion of what use will be made of the big brown-tented city in Texas, where the larger portion of the 2d division has been in camp for more than a year if the regulars now occupying it go to the front. Army men here say the camp reclaimed ground from a marsh, is the most sanitary for its size in the world.

Within the past year tentative plans have been laid before the war college in Washington for using this camp for drilling large bodies of men. The plan embraced filling the Texas City and Galveston camp sites with national guardsmen or volunteers after the regulars had left for the front, and drilling these recruits for about four months before sending them forward. Another feature of the same plan was to send part of the regulars now on border patrol duty to the war zone, retaining a few of them on the patrol and then sending large bodies of militiamen or volunteers to the border to be used on patrol duty until they are in shape for service at the front.

Shipmasters dislike carrying drums of acid where they cannot be reached readily. A Chilean ship just put in at the Falkland Islands leaking badly. Her cargo was made up of drums of acid and chalk. The acid had leaked from the drums and mixed with the chalk, forming carbonic acid gas in the hold. This gas is deadly and the crew could not make repairs. Meanwhile the acid had gathered at the bottom of the hold and eaten away the iron frames of the ship.

RECRUITING AT PORTLAND

First Maine Regiment is Getting Many Former Members—Expect Orders Before End of Week.

Portland, Me., April 23.—Capt. Walter de Costa Moore, quartermaster of the 1st Maine Regiment, said this afternoon recruiting is going on well, but the companies are still below war footing.

He said as far as he had heard all the officers will go with their command if the regiment is ordered into active service. A considerable number of former members of the National Guard have reenlisted in practically all appetite and sometimes become seriously ill.

Cotton is a really dangerous cargo if a little oil happens to touch raw cotton the result is what is called spontaneous combustion. A single bale of cotton saturated with such an oil as kerosene, and lying at the bottom of a hold, can be compared only to a slow match attached to a bomb. In fact, it is even more dangerous, because while there might be 99 chances out of 100 that something might happen to prevent the explosion of the bomb there are only about 99 chances out of 1000 that the cotton will not burn.

Cotton also causes sailors much discomfort. The French steamer Yarra, with a cargo of onions from Alexandria to England, lost one man and had three others rendered unserviceable by fumes rising from the tons of onions in her hold.

Acids and other chemicals form dangerous cargoes. Carbide of calcium, for instance, is more dangerous than dynamite. Acetylene gas is made from this chemical and the gas is constantly given off if the product is exposed to air. Some time ago the Hamburg bark Hebe was towed into Plymouth sound, England in a disabled condition. Her cargo was 200 tons of calcium carbide. When the commander-in-chief at Devonport learned the nature of the disabled bark's cargo he ordered all the war vessels in the sound to take refuge at Hamoaze and Fowey. The Hebe is to stand in for repairs and all her precious cargo had been removed by a barge of the war department.

The Volturno, a cargo which included rags, peat moss, barrels of spirits, tar and oil, together with drums of various chemicals. Water could have little effect on the flames from such a combination when it had caught fire.

Nitric and sulphuric acids are dangerous cargoes and add to the dangers of the sea when carried aboard ships. Two years ago the Phoenix liner Michigan was caught in a gale while coming to this country. She had a deckload of sulphuric and muriatic acid in metal drums. A huge sea washed over the forward deck and broke a number of the acid drums from their lashings, sending them crashing around the deck. Volunteers were called for to heave the drums ashore. The crashing of the sea and the rolling on the deck had split

KING GEORGE AT THE OPERA

Great Enthusiasm Over His Visit to Paris Continues

Paris, April 23.—Enthusiasm over the visit of King George V. and Queen Mary culminated last night when a crowd packed the Place de l'Opera and cheered the royal couple as they arrived to witness the opera. There was little applause, as tradition rules that the royal visitor, when one is present, should give the signal, and King George failed to do so. Queen Mary, who was in a gown of yellow satin, wore a small diamond crown and the ribbon of the Order of the Garter.

The royal couple had luncheon at the British embassy, after which they accompanied the President and Mme. Polk to Vincennes, where they witnessed a military review. Following the review they were received at the Vincennes town hall. They dined at the British embassy.

There has been considerable discussion of what use will be made of the big brown-tented city in Texas, where the larger portion of the 2d division has been in camp for more than a year if the regulars now occupying it go to the front. Army men here say the camp reclaimed ground from a marsh, is the most sanitary for its size in the world.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CAB

Engineer Gowen of Boston & Maine Has Excellent Record.

Engineer Walter S. Gowen of Biddeford, who informally celebrated his 60th birthday, April 17th, is one of the oldest employees in point of continuous service on the Portland division of the Boston and Maine railroad, where he has a record extending over nearly half a century.

His first work was with the old Portland, Saco and Portsmouth railroad on a run between Portland and this city.

When he was promoted to engineer he was assigned to a passenger train running between Portland and Boston, running this train daily for eight years.

For many years he ran the "Flying Yankee," which was the fastest train running between Portland and Boston. He hauled the Blaine delegates to the National Republican convention to Boston in two hours and 36 minutes, a new record, and he was complimented by the management.

Dec. 17, 1893, he was transferred to the Bar Harbor Express and afterward to the "Midnight Limited," where he has made some record trips.

He has been in only one accident, that being at Kennebunk, Dec. 26, 1893, when three men were killed. After a searching investigation Mr. Gowen was exonerated, although four railroaders were censured.

Engineer Gowen is a native of Newburyport.
